Being carried under the US $ 1 million grant from USDA, it is helping the participants reduce their monthly electricity bills.

BSES partners Australian firm for block chain technology platform for solar power trading

BRPL has partnered Australia's Power Ledger, a global leader in block-chain technology, to soon launch consumer-to-consumer (peer-to-peer) solar power trading on a trial basis. With this, BRPL has become the one-of-the-first discoms in the country to use Power Ledger's block chain based platform for peer-to-peer (P2P) solar trading. A feasibility study has been successfully undertaken. The offering will rolled-out, once the regulatory approvals are in place. Under this platform, the consumers will be able to trade solar power with their neighboring apartments and buildings using this platform rather than letting it spill-back to the grid.
