Times News Network

New Delhi: Deputy chief minister Manish Sisodia distributed tablets among 20 Class XI students from as many government schools on Thursday. The tablets have been donated by discoms Tata Power-DEL, BSES Rajdhani (BRPL) and BSES Yamuna (BYPL).

"Soon, the corona vaccine will be released, and this pandemic will be a matter of history. But the loss of education that our students are facing cannot be compensated by any vaccine. To minimise it, Delhi government is working on tablets," Sisodia said. Efforts are being made to provide online education to government school students but many lack access to the internet or devices, he added.

As the government lockdown has reduced time to the slowdown, "we urged companies to help under CSR initiatives. We are happy that Tata Power-DEL, has given 1,200, BRPL, 543 and BYPL 300 tablets," he said. Sisodia asked students to return the tablets after the examination time so that others can also benefit.

Kataram, one of the recipients, said his family shared one phone and he often ended up missing classes if it stopped working. "We had to ask others for help," he said.
